Aim

- Building management may be complicated and tedious. The owners, tenants, owners' corporations ("OCs") and property management companies may have different views on day-to-day management and maintenance work. Also, the OCs and the commercial operators in residential and composite buildings may have diverse views on matters related to the management of common areas. Insufficient communication may lead to disputes or even litigation.
- In the event of any disputes on building management, the parties concerned may engage mediation service to enhance communication for attaining a win-win solution in a collaborative manner. This will not only enable disputes to be resolved efficiently and effectively, but also save the costs and time incurred in taking legal actions.
- In view of this, the Home Affairs Department ("HAD") launches the Free Mediation Service Scheme for Building Management in collaboration with the Hong Kong Mediation Centre and the Hong Kong Mediation Council. HAD will arrange mediators to provide free professional mediation services for the parties concerned who would like to resolve the disputes on building management through mediation.

Scope of Service

- HAD will arrange a mediator to meet the clients of each party concerned separately ("intake interview") to explain the details of the Scheme, and the basic principle, concept and procedures of mediation, as well as encourage the parties concerned to resolve their dispute by way of mediation. An assessment will then be made with due regard to individual circumstances to decide if the case is suitable for mediation. The total number of hours for the intake interview with the clients of the parties concerned shall not exceed three hours.
- If the clients of all parties concerned agree to undertake mediation, HAD will appoint a mediator to have (1) a preparatory meeting and (2) a formal mediation session with the parties concerned.
- Having considered the circumstances, the mediator will hold a preparatory meeting with the clients of the parties concerned separately, so as to understand the case and the need of the parties concerned to work out an initial approach for resolving the problem and make preparation for the formal mediation session.
- During the formal mediation session, the mediator will invite both parties to state their case respectively and assist them to clarify, discuss and understand the core of their dispute, explore the need of the parties concerned and seek a mutually agreeable solution, so as to reach a settlement. The total number of meeting hours for the preparatory meeting and the formal mediation session shall not exceed 12 hours.

Points to Note

- The mediator is an independent and neutral third party who does not give any legal or other professional advice to nor make decisions for any party undertaking mediation.
- When the parties concerned in the dispute agree to undertake mediation, the clients are required to submit an Application Form and sign the Acknowledgement of Disclaimer in the Form to indicate their consent to the mediation session and their undertaking that they will not disclose any information (both oral and written) of the session to any unrelated parties.
- Before attending a formal mediation session, the parties concerned will be required by the mediator to sign an Agreement to Mediate stating that all discussion conducted pursuant to the Agreement to Mediate will not be disclosed except in specified circumstances, and all negotiations are conducted on a basis without prejudice to any of their rights.
- When a settlement is reached, the parties concerned are required to sign a Settlement Agreement which is legally-binding.
- After the mediation service, the clients are required to complete an evaluation form for evaluation of effectiveness.
- OCs wishing to undertake mediation service can only submit an application after a resolution is passed at their management committee meeting. The Chairman, Vice-chairman (if applicable), Secretary, Treasurer or Members shall also be authorised at the meeting to attend the mediation session, make decisions and sign the Settlement Agreement on behalf of the OC. The minutes of the meeting concerned, with the seal or chop of the OC impressed, shall be submitted with the Application Form.
